The Path of Heroism is a subclass for the Barbarian class in Dungeons & Dragons 5th Edition. It grants the Barbarian a variety of abilities that make them more heroic and inspiring to their allies.

The Path of Heroism is a good choice for Barbarians who want to be more than just a brute force. They want to be leaders and protectors, and they want to inspire their allies to fight alongside them. This subclass gives them the abilities to do just that.

Class Features

The Path of Heroism grants the Barbarian a number of class features that make them more heroic. These features include:

- Heroic Inspiration. At 3rd level, the Barbarian learns to inspire their allies with their heroic feats. When the Barbarian takes the Attack action, they can choose to spend one of their uses of Rage to inspire their allies. All allies within 30 feet of the Barbarian gain a +1 bonus to attack rolls and saving throws until the end of the Barbarian's next turn.
- Relentless Rage. At 6th level, the Barbarian becomes more difficult to stop. When the Barbarian is reduced to 0 hit points while raging, they can choose to make a DC 10 Constitution saving throw. If they succeed, they remain conscious and continue to rage. They have disadvantage on the saving throw if they are below half of their maximum hit points.
- Inspiring Presence. At 10th level, the Barbarian's presence becomes even more inspiring. Allies within 10 feet of the Barbarian gain a +1 bonus to AC and saving throws.
- Legendary Heroism. At 14th level, the Barbarian becomes a true legend. When the Barbarian uses their Heroic Inspiration ability, they can choose to grant one ally a +2 bonus to attack rolls and saving throws instead of the normal +1 bonus.
